Types of essays

Let's practice……..

Exercise 01: Read the introduction and select the most appropriate thesis statement.

a. Introduction:

In recent years, artificial intelligence tools have become increasingly common in academic writing. Students use them for brainstorming, drafting, and editing. While these tools offer efficiency and support, concerns have emerged regarding originality, authorship, and academic integrity.

A. AI is widely used in education today.
B. AI tools are helpful for students.
C. Although AI tools enhance efficiency in academic writing, they raise serious concerns about originality, authorship, and academic integrity.
D. This essay will discuss AI in education.

b. Introduction:

Student engagement in classrooms has become a growing concern in the post-digital era, where learners are constantly exposed to technology outside school. Teachers are now challenged to maintain attention and motivation in increasingly distracted learning environments.

A. Student engagement is important.
B. Technology affects students.
C. In post-digital classrooms, student engagement declines due to digital distractions, requiring innovative pedagogical strategies to sustain motivation and participation.
D. This essay talks about engagement.

Exercise 02: Which thesis does NOT fit the introduction?

Introduction:

Online education has expanded access to learning, particularly for students in remote or underserved areas. However, disparities in internet access and digital literacy continue to limit its effectiveness.

A. Online education increases access but is limited by digital inequality and lack of technological skills.
B. Online education is the future of education worldwide.
C. Despite expanding access, online education reinforces inequalities due to uneven digital resources.
D. The effectiveness of online education depends on access to technology and digital competence.

Exercise 03: Read the introduction and write a strong thesis statement.

Introduction: English has become the dominant language of global communication, especially in business, science, and technology. As a result, many educational systems prioritize English learning from an early age. However, this trend raises questions about linguistic diversity and cultural identity.

Exercise 04: Choose the best completion.

Introduction: Fast food consumption has increased significantly in modern societies due to convenience and affordability. However, its long-term effects on health are widely debated.

This essay argues that fast food consumption...

A. is common in many countries.

B. is convenient and cheap.

C. contributes to obesity, cardiovascular diseases, and other long-term health problems.

D. is popular among young people.

Exercise 05: Rank the following from weakest (1) to strongest (4).

Introduction:

Teacher professional development plays a crucial role in improving educational quality. Continuous training allows teachers to adapt to new methodologies and technologies.

A. Teacher training is important.

B. Teacher professional development helps teachers.

C. Continuous professional development enhances teaching effectiveness by equipping educators with innovative pedagogical and technological skills.

D. This essay will discuss teacher development.

Exercise 06: Read the introduction and decide the essay type.

In recent years, online learning has become an essential part of education systems worldwide. While it offers flexibility and accessibility, many students struggle with motivation and lack of interaction. These contrasting aspects raise important questions about its overall effectiveness. ……

Student disengagement in classrooms has become a growing concern, particularly in the digital age where distractions are constant. This issue negatively affects academic performance and classroom participation, making it necessary to explore effective strategies to address it. ……

Social media has transformed communication by enabling instant interaction across the globe. However, it has also contributed to reduced face-to-face communication and increased social isolation. Understanding both its benefits and drawbacks is essential to evaluate its overall impact. ……..

Recent developments in artificial intelligence have significantly reshaped academic writing practices. While some scholars emphasize its potential to enhance productivity and accessibility, others warn against its impact on originality and critical thinking. This ongoing debate highlights the need to critically evaluate the role of AI in academic contexts. …….

Urban air pollution has reached alarming levels in many metropolitan areas, leading to increased health risks and environmental degradation. These effects are largely attributed to industrial emissions, traffic congestion, and weak environmental policies, prompting calls for immediate intervention. …….